mphlet Reports housands Saved

least 40,000 cancer patients be saved this year who ld have died if they had deve- the disease about 25 years The American Cancer Society made this estimate in its '64 cer Facts and Figures' let which has just been re- ed.

predicted that about 180,- persons will be saved from cer during 1964. 'About 90,- 000 cancer patients will probably die in 1964 who might have been saved by earlier and better treatment,' according to the booklet.

The Society points out that under ideal conditions — early diagnosis and prompt treatment — 270,000 lives could be saved each year, or half of those who develop cancer. Now only one out of three is being saved.

Cancer Facts and Figures' reports that there are more than 1,200,000 Americans alive today who have been cured of cancer. An additional 700,000 cancer patients diagnosed and treated within the last five years will live to enter the ranks of those who are cured. The Society considers a cured cancer patient one who has been free of the disease five years after treatment.

January 2, 1964

To the Editor
I have learned through Mr. R. L. Marier, Chief Forest Warden David M. Smith, and some of the foresters from the Farmville district office that you have been a very willing and able cooperator. We want you to know that this means a great deal to us and certainly makes our assigned job a lot easier. When we know that we have the newspaper folks on our side, it is a very comforting feeling.

We thank you for your interest in the forestry program and the generous amount of space that you give to forestry.

Sincerely,
E. E. Rodger, Chief

A Cautious Man

Lesson for January 19, 1964

Nicodemus might have been one of the Apostles. He had more to start with than some of them did. He had education and money, for example not to mention great prestige as a member of the Jewish Council or Sanhedrin as it was called. But his case goes to show that it's not what you have that counts, it is what you do with what you have.

This man Nicodemus has been described in various ways. Some have thought that he came under the everlasting condemnation of God because he did not speak out boldly as he should have—he was a disciple who arrived too late, there on the contrary paint Nicodemus as being as much of a disciple as the circumstances permitted, a man whose faith triumphed in the end.

He came by night

The thing that most people remember about Nicodemus is that he "came by night" to Jesus. That does not label him a coward, but it does show him to be a cautious man. He was willing, indeed almost eager, to hear what Jesus had to tell him, only he didn't think it would do his prestige any good to be seen interviewing Jesus, and admitting that he, a ruler in Israel, did not know all he needed to know about religion.

Jesus did not brush him off. If the Lord had despised him or thought him altogether a coward, he would not have said to him the things he did. Some of the most profound things Jesus ever said were spoken in conversation with this careful, timid man. It is rash to say that Jesus failed to convert this distinguished personage. Nicodemus was not convinced that very evening, he took time to think it over. He took too long; for he never saw Jesus Christ until matters had gone too far to change. However, he did think, and seems to have done out openly for Jesus at the last.

Caution to the last

Nevertheless, Nicodemus never became a bold man. When h spok a modrat word to the Rabbi from Nazareth, he did not profess to defend him. All he said was that Jesus deserved a fair trial. Even that little was too much for the Sanhedrin, i d they shouted Nicodemus down. Nicodemus did not try it again, may infer. Then after the death of Jesus, Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea joined in caring of the body. Yet even here the reader notices that it was not Nicodemus but Joseph who took the lead. Nicodemus was doing a costly and gracious act, but he was led in this by another man.

All the same, though as was said, this "ruler" never became outstand ng for heroism, the fact remains that asking Pilate for the body of a man just executed by Pilate's own order took more courage than coming to Jesus by night.

After all's said, it still is a fact that Nicodemus missed a great deal by not becoming a disciple in the whole-hearted way of Peter and John. He missed what he might have had, association with Jesus through those years of conflict. Not only that he missed the great joy the disciples had in serving the Master. There can't be much doubt that the twelve apostles, humble and ordinary men though they were, did more for their fellow-men during those years with Jesus than Nicodemus ever did in the same space of time. Nicodemus cut himself off from by and from usefulness, by his cautious and "cagy" approach to faith.

People today are like that man, sometimes. They expect to be saved in the time but they are in no hurry. They want a lot of evidence to convince them. They spend too much time, by the river of Truth, testing the temperature of the water and never heartily diving in. A Nicodemus may arrive in the end; but think what he misses along the way!

Phys. Education Unifies School Life, Says Carver-Price Dept.

Physical Education has been defined as; "the sum of man's activities, selected as to kind, conducted as to outcomes." Since physical education is to be considered as a means of education "through" physical activities rather than an education of the physical, the phrases selected "as to kind" and "conducted as to outcomes" are very important.

Selected as to kind indicates that activities differ and a choice is required but, when one chooses a standard is necessary. The second phrase, conducted as to outcomes is equally important. Modern education emphasizes education in interests and attitudes as well. Therefore, an education in physical activities may mean a real interest in wholesome recreation with favorable attitudes developed, which otherwise would be perhaps dull.

Physical education unifies school life. Society today gives numberous signs that play and recreation are essential for an individual to become a well - rounded citizen. With the world shrinking in such small as it is today, with our social and economical problems, and of course with our future looking toward the moon, there is indeed a great need for physical education in order that we may survive. Have you ever thought of just what you would do for leisure in a Fall-Out-Shelter? How would you exercise your muscles?

This Department is one of the many believers of our late President, John F. Kennedy's program for physical fitness. With the communication media of today; Jets, television, Tel-Star, etc. we do not have to exert very many muscles for anything. Let us not deteriate because of our modern conveniences.

The physical education department realizes that physical education is only one of the many phases of the education process. So do an effort to fulfill some of the basic concepts and modern ideals of physical ed. mentioned above, Carver-Price's physical education department has numberous activities for its students to participate in so that they may attain the development for which the physical education program is intended. Some of the activities that a student may participate in are; enter-school athletic contest; Track-Basketball, Baseball and Football, which was instituted this school year as an additional sport; with which to widen our horizon for participation thus, increasing the possibility of fulfilling the objectives of the department. Those in the department feel that no activities in school can do as much for the development of an individual in the decision-making area as competitive sports. An A student who has participated in competitive sports will be a better A student as a result of the unmeasurable assets that are obtained from the participation of competitive sports.

For those students who h e not reached the stage of development to compete in inter-school sports they are given the opportunity to develop the same objectives through participation in intra-school activities such as marching, tumbling, dancing, calisthenias, the annual class-tournament and a departmental exhibition for the benefit of individual skills developed.

The department wishes to take this opportunity to extend to you and yours an invitation to attend all of the activities so that you may see the skills and development that your children, neighbors and friends have attained as a result of having participated in the physical education program.
